Croydon Minster

Eucharist

During August, Eucharist services are held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11.00am and on Sunday at 10.00am.

There will be no maximum number of people in church. We still ask you to register by Eventbrite or to use the Test and Trace QR code using the app.

Registering by Eventbrite aids the flow of people into church, so it would be really helpful if you could use it.

Healing and Hope

The focus of this edition of the parish magazine is young people and coming through the pandemic. So many areas of life suffered a huge impact from the pandemic, and whilst young people did not generally become ill through Covid, their lives were certainly affected.

Gordon Knott and his team at Croydon Drop-In (CDI), located opposite the church, work with young people and young adults. Gordon describes the range and breadth of issues that have arisen and the ways in which he and his team seek to respond to them. CDI are ‘first responders’ to a crisis that will only grow in adolescent and young adult mental health. They do an amazing job of supporting people who are beginning to get desperate, and Gordon’s article ends powerfully with a message of hope.

The Minster Schools, with whom we have a precious relationship as their parish church, have likewise had many challenges thrown their way by Covid. At the same time they have been exploring the best ways to secure and develop the schools’ futures. They are in great hands with their headteachers and governors. It is not often well understood how church schools operate and so Diane Edwards, one of our congregation and chair of governors at the Minster Nursery and Infant School, gives an introduction to that. Hannah Farhan, the headteacher of the Minster Junior School, also describes some of the issues for the school at the moment. As our church schools we give thanks for them and on Sunday 12th September we will welcome some of the children on ‘Education Sunday’ when our celebrant and preacher will be the Bishop of Southwark, Bishop Christopher.

One of the most devastating tragedies of the twentieth century was the Lanfranc School air disaster, when boys and masters of Lanfranc Secondary Modern School (now Archbishop Lanfranc Academy) were travelling in a plane that crashed off Stavanger in Norway. That was 60 years ago. Elaine Cooper writes movingly about this dreadful event which will be commemorated at the Minster on Sunday 8th August during the Parish Eucharist.

In amongst tragedy, pain and pandemic the Gospel of Jesus Christ still speaks of new life. Diana Hemmings sketches out some ideas for a seed bank project we would like to invite people to join in with. Seeds, of all things, speak of hope and a commitment to the future placing our trust in God’s hands: ‘Now the green blade riseth from the buried grain’.

This healing and hope is encapsulated in the sacraments. Jon Blanchard opens up two of them – confession and anointing – through the lens of the Seven Sacraments font at St Andrew’s Church, the work of Cicely Mary Barker.

A font is the place us of birth and life; confession is the place of reclaiming fullness of life through God’s forgiveness through an examination of our flawed condition; anointing is the place of the healing presence of Christ in our lives.

May we all, young and old, know renewal and refreshment in these coming weeks.

What is a Church School?

Fr Andrew has suggested that, as part of the Church's autumn focus on Children and Young People and schools and in order to mark Education Sunday, Hannah Farhan and I should write about what exactly a church school is, the role of Foundation Governors within those schools and the proposed changes to the way in which the two Minster Schools will be managed in the coming years.

A church school is one which provides a general education, as does any community school but is supported by a particular church. It demonstrates Christian values through its ethos, the teaching of RE, the regular holding of Collective Worship and its commitment that all teaching and learning experiences should be within the context of Christian belief and practice.

The Minster Schools are, of course, in partnership with The Minster Church and also the Southwark Diocesan Board of Education, and their religious character is shaped according to the principles of the Church of England. Currently, a quarter of all primary and over 200 secondary schools are Church of England church schools. They are inclusive in that they exist for the benefit of the local community, providing an education for those of Christian belief and those of other faiths or of no faith, as in the case of our own school communities which are multi faith and diverse. Every church school expresses its aims, values and ethos within its mission statement. The Mission Statements of The Minster Schools can be accessed on the website of the individual school.

Each school governing body is responsible for ensuring the quality of education provided through the school by receiving reports on its performance, by questioning, monitoring and advising and by supporting and encouraging the Head Teacher and staff. It is a key part of the leadership and management team of the school and its contribution is examined within any school OFSTED inspection and, in the case of church schools, within the SIAMS process (Statutory Inspection of Anglican and Methodist Schools).

The governing bodies of church schools are largely comprised of Foundation Governors. These are governors whose appointment is approved by the diocese (usually through the associated church). It is preferred that Foundation Governors are communicant Anglicans or at least have a Christian commitment and belong to a Trinitarian Christian Church. Where this is not the case, the governor must share and support the values and ethos of the school since governors are collectively responsible for ensuring that these are reflected in its policies, curriculum and activities.

New Developments

The Minster Junior School has been serving this local community for over 65 years. The children and families it serves have changed and grown considerably over the years and the school has adapted its practice to best meet the needs of the community.

The Minster Junior School has been on an incredible journey and continues to go from strength to strength. To continue this journey, this year, the Governors voted to explore the option of joining the Southwark Diocese Board of Education Multi-Academy Trust (SDBE MAT).

The MAT was formed in 2016 in recognition that the educational landscape was quickly changing and in response to the threat of SDBE schools becoming isolated. The creation of the Trust provided the opportunity for SDBE schools to join, creating more security for church schools by providing stability and giving the chance for greater relations and knowledge-sharing, not just within regions, but across the Diocese, ultimately improving the educational experience for children.

There was no question that the school would only consider joining a multi-academy trust which recognises that each school is unique and celebrates their distinctiveness by protecting our autonomy; something that the SDBE MAT prides itself on.

With a wide range of primary schools across the borough, parents have an abundance of choice when deciding where to send their children to school. Unfortunately, this has meant that a number of schools have seen a sharp decline in admissions. The importance of financially safeguarding schools has never been more important. Long term, the financial implications of being part of the SDBE MAT would allow for considerable savings across many business functions and ultimately ensure the school has great staff, high quality resources and conducive learning environments where our pupils can learn and flourish.

The Minster Junior School acknowledges the importance of Continuous Professional Development to ensure our children are receiving the best possible education experience. The Trust provides a broad range of educational development training sessions to respond to the current training and improvement needs of the schools in the Trust. The Minster Junior School also has much to offer the MAT. Many years of investing in staff professional development has created a strong and experienced team which will no doubt have a positive impact across the other schools in the Trust.

Having consulted with the Governors, PCC, staff and parents with no opposition, and providing there are not any concerns that arise through the thorough due-diligence process, the school is aiming for a conversion by January 2022. This is a very exciting time for The Minster Junior (and Infant) School as we look forward to an exciting future for our schools.

The impact of Covid-19 on local children and young people

- a view from Croydon Drop In

Croydon Drop In is a 43-year-old charity that supports the community with a variety of services including Advice & Advocacy, Counselling in community and schools, Outreach via our mobile unit The Talkbus, Infant Mental Health and Early Years interventions.

In common with most of the community we had to close our face to face services on 17th March 2020 with an immediate consequence for children and young people (CYP) that their support moved either online or via phone. The whole charity went paperless overnight and we spent most of the next 15 months upgrading our IT and training ourselves to use the new technology. The advantage of this for the future is that we will continue to enhance our services by offering support both virtually and face to face.

75% of CYP were happy to switch over to the new ways of working and this high rate of take-up has continued, although as the pandemic has gone on, there are many signs of Zoom/Teams/online fatigue. Sleep difficulty continues to be a presenting issue with young people finding it hard to regulate their use of mobile phones, plus the fact they have been encouraged to spend more time online when isolated from their friends and from educational settings. It's worth saying that adults are not immune to this high level of usage either and are suffering similar symptoms.

The levels of referrals to our services rose and fell in line with the lockdowns and since March this year we have seen a steady rise in requests for intervention. We believe this is due to built-up anxieties now needing to find expression especially as we have all spent more time with each other at close quarters and not having access to our usual outlets.

We continue to be concerned for vulnerable groups of young people which include Children Looked After, young Refugees and Asylum Seekers, LGBTQ+ young people and the cohorts of CYP transitioning from Nursery School to Reception, from Year 6 to Year 7, Year 10 into their GCSE year, Year 11s to Year 12 (who have missed out on their rite of passage post-GCSE), Year 13 post-A level onto College/Uni/Workplace and new University post-graduates meant to be moving on into an unpredictable market for the adult workforce.

Our response this year has included initiating Waiting List Groups (pre-counselling support), a new Sexuality & Gender Identity Group, a rejuvenated Young People's Participation Group, Care For Croydon Collective (C4CC is a monthly webinar for the workforce encouraging sharing of good practice), Go Further Go Higher (a two-year project engaging with 16–25 year olds who are transitioning in between Higher & Further Education/Apprenticeships/Work and struggling with their mental health) and Into Tomorrow which was a therapeutic art project we completed with local residents.

Currently 50% of CYP coming through our front door are aged 10–13 while their main presenting issues are anxiety, low mood, panic attacks, family issues and low self-esteem. 48% of all CYP aged 10–25 years of age are reporting suicidal ideation with 35% wanting to talk about self-harm. This level of need is not exclusive to CDI and is familiar to colleagues at Off The Record and Child & Adolescent Mental Health Services too, and our partnerships with services such as these have been enormously strengthened.

Despite the exhaustion and ongoing adversity, the response from the community has been phenomenal and we are hopeful this renewed level of interest in each other's welfare will not dissipate easily. Our local commissioners and national funders have been very supportive and whilst we are mindful of the ongoing impact of the Council's bankruptcy on service provision, we are part of an active and resourceful local Voluntary & Community Sector that continues to play its part.

The picture is still shifting and there is an optimism as we look forward to the return of schools in September that another milestone will be met. Our own self-care remains a priority as the boundaries between personal and professional life have never been more blurred, we need to look after ourselves to be able to look out for each other.

Never mind whether the glass is either half full or half empty, as long as it remains refillable then there is hope.

The Seven Sacraments Font at St Andrew's

Percy Pierce was verger at St Andrew's church for forty years. He died in 1940 and as a memorial to this faithful servant of the church it was decided to decorate the font in his memory with paintings on each of its sides. The artist was Cicely Mary Barker, who illustrated the popular Flower Fairy books and was a worshipper and supporter of St Andrew's and also St George's. Given the date of Percy Pierce's death, these paintings must have been created during the early years of the Second World War, when enemy planes would have been frequently heard in the sky above Croydon.

The font is not very large and has eight sides. There is a plaque commemorating Percy Pierce on one side and pictures on the other seven, painted by Cicely Mary Barker. They show the seven sacraments of the church and the figures are dressed in what was then contemporary dress. Now eighty years later they look rather charming and quaint, but they are a witness to how the church's sacramental ministry is for all time.

There are a number of medieval fonts in Norfolk and Suffolk with carvings of the sacraments on seven sides, so St Andrew's is carrying on an ancient tradition. Since the font is the place of Baptism, the entry into the sacramental life of the church, this is very appropriate.

The seven sacraments are in the first place, Baptism, Confirmation and Holy Communion. One obvious period detail is that the women are all wearing hats, except for the girl being confirmed who is wearing a plain white veil. Then there are Ordination and Marriage. The remaining two sacraments may be less familiar.

or to some discreet and learned Minister of God's Word, and open his grief; that by the ministry of God's holy Word he may receive the benefit of absolution". The words of the absolution are given under the service for the Visitation of the Sick.

The important point is not necessarily any advice that the priest may give, but taking part in an act of reconciliation.

The sacrament of Anointing of the sick has its biblical basis in James 5.14 which says, "Are any among you sick? They should call for the elders of the church and have them pray over them, anointing them with oil in the name of the Lord." The picture shows a young woman ill in bed and a priest in purple stole is about to anoint her with oil blessed by the bishop. Anointing is an act of prayer and faith in God. At one time it was believed, wrongly, that it should only take place just before death, and so it was known as Extreme Unction, which means a final anointing. However it is not just for the end of life, but healing generally.

Anointing of the sick is a very beautiful and strengthening sacrament. It may be in the context of a home visit or arranged to happen in church. Sometimes this may be before an operation, or at a more general time of seeking restoration of body, mind or spirit. A priest would be very happy to respond to any request for this sacrament and bring communion to anyone sick at home. I am sure you only need to ask.

The Lanfranc Air Disaster, August 1961

One of the most devastating events that Croydon has experienced occurred 60 years ago when a tragic accident linked the people of Croydon to the people of Stavanger in south west Norway.

On Wednesday 9th August 1961 an Eagle Airways Vickers Viking – codename Papa Mike – left London Airport on a much anticipated school excursion. On board were 34 boys aged between 13 and 16 from Lanfranc School in Croydon with their teachers George Budd and John Beacham, and the three flight crew. After a long delay the flight finally departed at 13.29 for the 2½ hour flight to Sola Airport at Stavanger in Norway.

At 16.03GMT the co-pilot contacted Sola Airport control to begin the descent. The last radio contact was at 16.20. At 16.29 the Air Traffic controller, expecting the plane to have been in position to land, could not raise radio contact and realised it had disappeared from his radar screen. He immediately alerted search aircraft and other regional airports to the emergency. A plane was missing...

The first indication any of the families had was on the BBC radio news at 9pm that night, reporting that a plane from London Airport to Stavanger with an all male passenger list was missing. The father of one of the boys immediately phoned London Airport and was eventually told the awful news that it was the Lanfranc group. The news was broken to the Daily Express and their reporters including a young Michael Parkinson were sent to cover the story for the morning editions.

The wreckage was finally located early next morning by a local farmer in Holta and at the same time by the Royal Norwegian Air Force search helicopter. The plane had crashed just below the summit of a peak called Holtahøia, 33km north east of Sola airport and 24km off course from the expected landing approach route. There were no survivors.

A service held in Stavanger Cathedral that evening was packed with 2500 locals and British tourists. Flags flew at half mast, and radio services stopped as Norway mourned. That respect and compassion continued through the following days as the necessary procedures at the crash site were set in motion.

Back in Croydon all flags across the town flew at half mast. The citizens of Croydon were deeply shocked – so many people knew at least one of the boys, who had lived all across the borough.

After the initial survey by crash investigators the local Norwegian Red Cross teams began the dreadful task of recovering the victims for repatriation to the UK. It must have been a terrible task to cope with but they carried it out with great respect and care. The eventual departure of the funeral convoy leaving for the final heartbreakingly journey to Sola airport was witnessed by crowds lining the 12-mile route standing in absolute silence, heads bowed in respect.

A mass funeral and grave for most of the Lanfranc party had been arranged by Croydon council for 17th August. Flags were still at half mast, crowds gathered in their thousands and at 3pm shops closed and the town came to a standstill as the service in Croydon Parish Church began. At the same time the bells of Stavanger Cathedral also rang as a service of remembrance took place there.

Relatives and friends, and the press then proceeded to Croydon Crematorium with the clergy and dignitaries for the committal. Afterwards and on the following day an estimated 100,000 people came to pay their respects – the queue stretched

shutterstock.com/FreezeFrames back along London Road almost into Norbury. The drive of the crematorium was lined with over 1700 floral tributes.

Many who withdrew or could not afford to go on that trip still experience guilt at surviving. Parents had deep regrets at allowing their son to sign up. There were relatives and friends who had strong misgivings or premonitions of disaster before the tour departed – some had desperately wanted to say ‘Don’t go’ but did not know why.

There was no concept then of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder so there was no official counselling for the grieving relatives and friends or for the young volunteers of the Red Cross Hjelpekorps. Many of these volunteers were in their late teens and twenties, not much older than the school boys. They had worked for a total of 648 hours between them. Despite all the investigations the complete answer to the crash is still under debate and may be a combination of many factors.

At the time it was the biggest air accident ever to have happened in Norway and the worst disaster to happen to any school in peacetime.

On a stark mountainside in Norway a grey, granite cross now stands – a stark memorial to the 39 people who died there. A replica one gifted by the people of Stavanger also stands at the grave site in Croydon Crematorium which is now the Lanfranc Memorial Garden.

This year sees the 60th anniversary of the Lanfranc Air Crash. Relatives and friends of the families will be joining us for the Eucharist on 8th August when we will commemorate all those who lost their lives. A service will also take place in Stavanger at the same time. At 1pm UK time (2pm Norway) the unveiling of a new memorial plaque at Holtahøia will be live streamed on Facebook.

This account has not been able to cover all details of the disaster. Two comprehensive books by Rosalind Jones, sister of one of the boys, we hope will be available to purchase after the service. All proceeds will be shared between the Red Cross and Croydon Minster.

Are you a Gardener?

Window box gardening

In your back garden

On your allotment

As part of conservation – on a small scale – I wondered if, as a Church, we could start a Seed Library.

The idea would be for ‘gardeners’ to collect and save the seeds from their vegetables or flowers at the end of the season, most probably in the Autumn. I thought this project would be a simple way to help us be an environmentally friendly church.

1. Collect your seeds and place in an envelope with the following information on the outside:

- * Year harvested
- * Common seed name
- * Variety
- * Annual / perennial
- * Description of plant – including size
- * When to plant
- * Sow direct / raise as seedlings

2. Keep in a safe place or bring to Church and give to Diana Hemmings.

3. In early Spring 2022 we would begin a Seed Exchange – either at a special Coffee Morning or after Church on a Sunday.

4. There would be no cost, but please collect further seeds to return to the Seed Library.

This could be a good way to meet other ‘gardeners’ and perhaps establish some community planters in the Church grounds.
